Miss Mona Stangley

Owner and operator of “The Chicken Ranch.”

No nonsense, fierce business woman, protective over her “girls” and energetic.

Jewel Mosley

Housekeeper at The Chicken Ranch for more than twenty five years. A confidante of Miss Mona’s, self-assured and delightfully sassy.

Doatsey Mae Grimes

Waitress at the Texas Twinkle Café. She’s a trusting, reliable ear, and totally over the men of the town.

Imogene Charlene Greene

Texas A&M university student, double majoring in Home Economics and Religion. She’s a proud pageant girl and an excellent cheerleader.

“Angel” aka Nancy Jean Drury

Former teen mom who left home after giving birth to her son Billy, now six years old, after her father beat her up. She’s tough, and scrappy.

“Shy” aka, Annamerle Seltzer

Country, farm girl; young, fresh faced, sheltered and gawky. Naïve and shy, but headstrong and capable.

Linda Lou

Has a “been there, done that” attitude, sarcastic and mouthy. The inappropriate clown of the group.

Ginger

Divorcee, nice, welcoming and well adjusted. Gets her name from her red hair.

Dawn

Innocent, positive, peppy down home girl next door.

Ruby Rae

Awkward. Tries everything she can think of to improve her stock at the ranch, but always seems to be the last chosen. Not at all negative about it, though.

Eloise

A native New Yorker, named by Mona after the precocious and dramatic six year old character in some of her favorite children's books.

Beatrice

Royal, regal, prim and proper- the tallest of the "girls."

Taddy Jo

Athletic, direct and grounded- called the tomboy of the group.

Durla

Economical, chameleon-like and not prone to socializing. Known for turning around clients the quickest.

"Bandleader" aka John Fitzgerald Stangle

Full of charm and good feeling. He is the narrator of the story.

Sheriff Ed Earl Dodd

Sheriff of La Grange, Texas. A down home, cowboy type, lovingly curmudgeonly-more than a little rough around the edges. He's a "live and let live" type, though, surprisingly liberal in his ideas and his language.

Melvin P. Thorpe

Television personality and part-time revivalist preacher. He's brash, bigger than life and a complete blowhard.

Governor Briscoe

A former rancher and businessman from Uvalde, TX now a first term Governor in his first year in office. He's the quintessential politician: Saying a lot of nothing.

Edsel Mackey

He's now Editor in Chief of the local newspaper and is, without question, the smartest man in town. Witty, dry and shrewd.

Mayor Rufus Poindexter

Local automobile dealer and youngest son of the town's richest and most well known family. He is overwhelmed by his job, and incompetent.

C.J. Scruggs

A good, deeply religious insurance salesman. In contrast to his personality, he's the loudest, worst dresser in town.

Senator JT Wingwoah

Young, short, Napoleonic good ole boy

Shane Miller

Quarterback of the Texas A&M Aggies. Full of bravado and star power.

Lonnie Johnson

Star running back of the Texas A&M Aggies. Always trying to prove his masculinity.

Eugene Williams

Freshman benchwarmer for the Texas A&M Aggies. Scrawny and small, but full of enthusiasm.

Clifford Becker

Third year senior at Texas A&M and defensive end for the Aggies. Loud and big.

“Scandinavian Place Kicker” Alvar Askelson

International recruit and place kicker for the Texas A&M Aggies. Has a sweet, confused disposition. Speaks with a very thick Scandinavian accent.
